Call for Proposals: African American Studies 10th Anniversary Conference

November 5 - 7, 2017

The African American Studies Program at MSU will culminate its 10th anniversary year with a Black Studies Education Conference. Its sessions will include student activists who pioneered the black studies education movement in the 1960s.

The Program Committee is seeking scholars to present papers and serve on panels for the conference. The committee welcomes proposals on the theme of black studies in the 21st Century, as well as papers with historical, social science, legal or economic perspective. Proposals must be submitted by email in pdf format sent to ltownsend@aes.msstate.edu.

Please include your contact information and affiliation. For more information, call the African American Studies Program at 662-325-0587.
